...El Maton is a Spanish name meaning 'the killer.' There are several legends behind the name given to this rural area. One theory on the reasoning of this name is that late one night a group of Mexicans, who had been drinking, were fighting and several of them were killed. Others say the name came about because of an accident when a Mexican man got his foot caught on the railroad track and was killed by a train. Others say it is simply because El Maton once had a slaughter house and the name just fit the town.

For many years, the postal department called the town 'Midfields,' but they were finally persuaded to drop the plural and call it 'Midfield.' In 1903, the first general merchandise store was opened. There was a school, but it unfortunately burned down in 1929.

The first post office was built in 1903, and a library was built between 1903 and 1905. In 1909, a newspaper was established which was called Blessing News. ...Buckeye had a company store and a boarding house. In 1905, thirty-five students were taught in a nearby one-room school. The community secured a post office in 1907. In 1914, the community had 100 residents and a canning company, a truck-farming association, a general store, a lumberyard, a hotel, a telegraph agent, and a telephone connection. In 1936, a church, several dwellings, and three businesses were there. However, in 1940, the population had dwindled to twenty-five people. The post office closed in 1971 and the current population is still reported as twenty-five.

Did You Know...?

The Karankawa Indians once used the area as a campsite when they roamed up and down the Texas coast searching for fresh water, firewood, and food. In 1890 Captain W.W. Moore established a general store in this area, thus marking the beginning of a small town named Ashby.

▶With no road sign, the only reminder of the Ashby community is a Texas Historical marker at the sight where Ashby was once located.

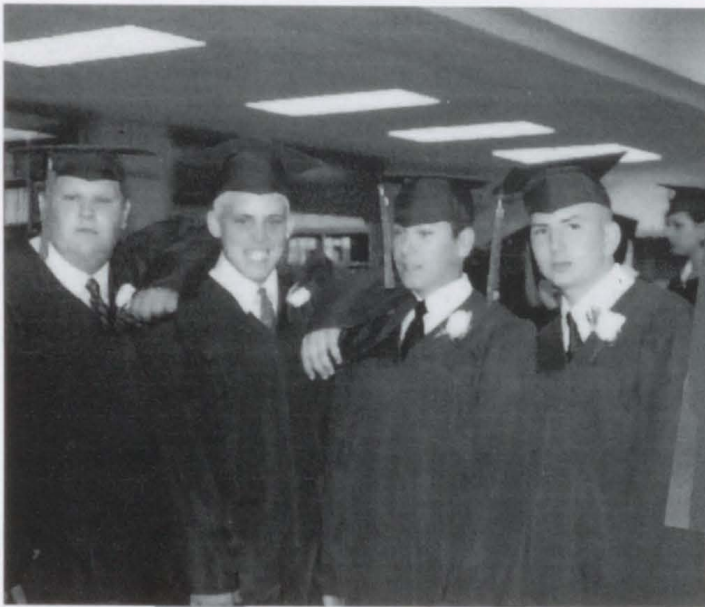

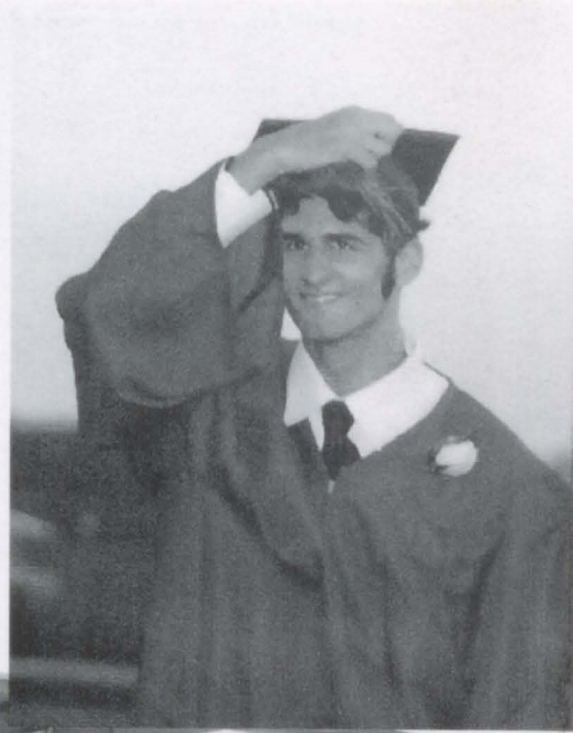

58 Graduates

With the Tiger Band playing the processional, the seniors took the field on Friday, May 30th, to receive the reward they worked 13 years to achieve. The seniors received diplomas and scholarships, listened to and gave speeches and said their last goodbyes on the Tiger field. The guest speaker for the evening was Sergio Calixto Montanez, a 1997 graduate of Tidehaven High School. Sergio's speech took the seniors back several years to when he lived in a small town in Mexico. The house where he was raised did not have running water or electricity until he was 12. Poverty was a very familiar word to Sergio because he lived it. Sergio reminded students to not be stopped by roadblocks because they will help you become what you want to be.

First known as Hardy, this town came into being around 1908, when oil was discovered and the Hardy #1 well was drilled. The name was later changed to Clemville in honor of F.J. Clemenger, who helped develop the oil field. In May of 1911, a post office was established in Clemville. The town continued to grow with a church, two stores, a cafe, hotels, and service stations. There was a school until Clemville was consolidated with Markham. Clemville is almost a ghost town now, with little physical evidence remaining of the once booming town.

▲With a few remaining buildings, this historical marker is part of what remains of Clemville at the present time.

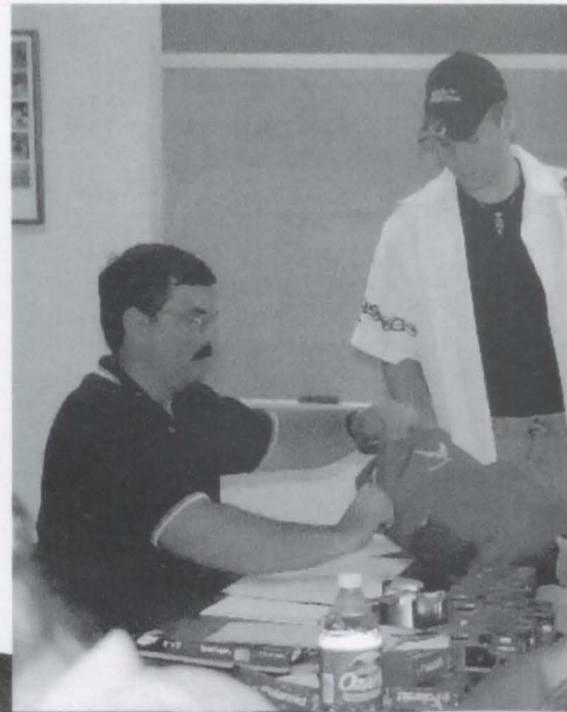

Time to Celebrate

With one last time to be together as a class, members of the graduating class came together for Project Graduation. This year the location was changed from the high school to the Blessing Catholic Church Fellowship Hall. The seniors and their guests checked in by midnight, leaving their car keys with the chaperones and having their bags searched. From midnight until six the next morning, everyone was able to play pool, ping pong and video games, watch movies, gamble at casino games and get plenty of food to eat. It was an all-night party that everyone enjoyed!

Ready to scare, Junior Reba Glaze wanders around the Blessing Fire House during the annual STARS haunted house. "I could not figure out what to be so I decided to be a dead person, but... I really don't look that dead!" Reba stated.

"The final choice was slightly difficult because I could not decide what I wanted on one side of my Senior ring. Finally, I told the man to just put my name," stated Junior Stacey Parr. Stacey and Heather Rodriguez took their time to choose their Senior rings.

▲Anxiously waiting their turn, seniors Clay Broadwater and Junior Martinez sit outside before their final book conferences. Clay said, "I learned that it was really hard to do a book conference if you read your book upside down."

Book Smarts

Language Arts is a basic class that is vital to a student's path to a successful career after graduation. In most classes, you think that the information you are given is something you will more than likely never use in your future. But what about those other classes? Will you ever use what you have learned or will it all be for nothing? In some cases, yes, some of the information might not be useful to you depending on your career. But what if you had to write an essay to get a job or apply for college or scholarships? Or what about typing up a resume for a summer job? Suddenly you are grateful for those classes that were required of you to take that you thought were so boring. In the English classes, students are continuously learning new vocabulary, improving spelling, punctuation, and capitalization, and writing simple, compound and complex-compound sentences. Students in the upper classes learn how to use the library for their research papers. These papers help the students to become more familiar with the writing process, analyzing and interpreting texts, and learning how to organize and compile information into a report.

However, not only did you learn how to write, edit and expand your vocabulary, you also read different selections from American and British authors. You have been exposed to the writings and styles of many different authors that come from different ethnic backgrounds. You have learned about various literary terms and analyzed and interpreted different text structures. These readings have also shown you different times in the history of the world, such as the Anglo-Saxon era, the Medieval era and the Renaissance era.

English classes really do seem difficult, hard and trying at times, but in the long run, you may realize that the teachers have been trying to prepare you for what may lay ahead in the years to come.

▲Taking a bow, Lindsay Bexley's group end their presentation in English III. "We were remaking the Harlem Renaissance. I got to be the GREAT Miss Billie Holiday," Lindsay said.

►Signing up, senior Veronica Picon makes the important decision of her research paper topic. "I chose medieval medical care because I plan to become a nurse."

◀Right: Nervously waiting, freshman Cameron Cornelius sits in anticipation for Mrs. Boyett's test. "I likde doing my re-search paper over Queen Victoria. It was easy to find the information and fun to learn about her," Cameron stated.

◀Left: Just jammin' in English are juniors Heather Rodriguez and Adam Martinez. Heather explains, "We were doing a duet acting like Billie Holiday and Louis Armstrong."

▼Reaching in the basket, senior Elizandro Perez arrives early to pick his number for English IV research papers. Elizandro said, "There weren't really many topics left, so I chose 'The Commonwealth and Restoration of Puritanism' for my research paper."

English IV "I learned all different new things this year, but I really learned how to write an essay without falling." BJ Lee

English III "The thing I learned most in this class was finally learning how to read." Wes Magby

English II "Five years from now, the thing I will remember from English will be to read between the lines." Kristen Klicker

English I: "I learned alot of vocabulary. I will always remember what 'promiscuous' means." Jaeneer Earnhart

► Explaining the proper technique, senior Cassie Silva helps Alicia Carpenter catch up on writing a business letter. "Powerpoint is the most interesting activity that I learned in BCI. It lets you express yourself and show your creativity," Cassie stated.

Business Computer Information Systems, more commonly known as BCIS, is the course that fulfills a student's Technology Application credit required for graduation. In BCIS, students learn about and apply word processing, database, spreadsheets, desktop publishing and presentation management technology to many projects during the class time. For example, while learning spreadsheets, students had to make a spreadsheet that showed the sale of animals at the Matagorda County Fair and the amount paid for each animal sold. For power point activities, students researched different holidays and then gave a presentation using power point and the clip art they had found. If the students fulfill all the requirements of the class, they are able to earn credit hours from Victoria College.

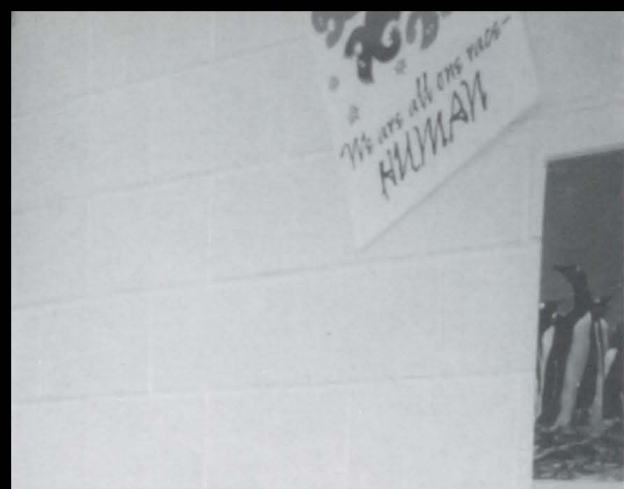

During the school year, students in science classes have many hands-on experiences to test their knowledge. Experiments are performed to enhance the class lectures. In chemistry, students conducted field laboratory investigations, used scientific methods during investigations and made informed decisions using critical thinking and scientific problem solving. Students studied a variety of topics that included characteristics of matter, energy transformations during physical and chemical changes, the atomic structure and the periodic table of elements. Other topics that were covered included behavior of gases, bonding, nuclear fusion and fission, oxidation-reduction reactions, chemical equations, solutes, properties of solutions, acids and bases, and chemical reactions.

▼ Hard at work, senior Fabiola Tapia practices typing business letters in BCI. Fabiola said, "The hardest thing was learning how to make formulas for spreadsheets."

◀Right: Explaining to his classmate, junior Garrett Krueger works on finding solids in river water. Garrett said, "The most interesting experiment we did was titrating acids."

▲Working diligently, junior Brian Dannels conducts an experiment in Chemistry. "The most interesting thing in that class was when Mr. Rowland showed us how reactive potassium, lithium, and sodium were by exploding them in water," Brian commented.

◀Left: Trying to graduate, senior Chris Duke works on his BCI assignment. When asked what the most interesting thing to learn was, Chris said, "I couldn't really say. Half the time I was in the office or in ISS."

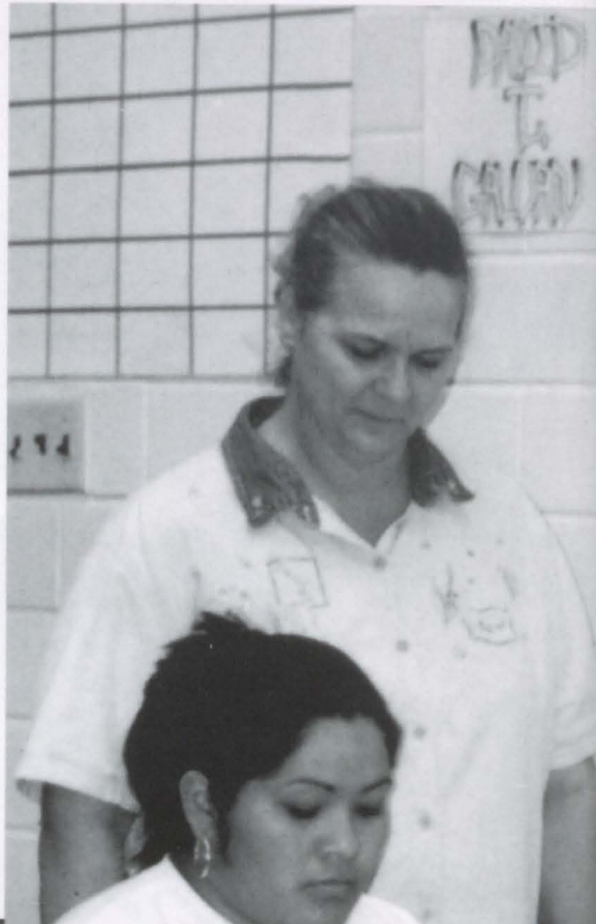

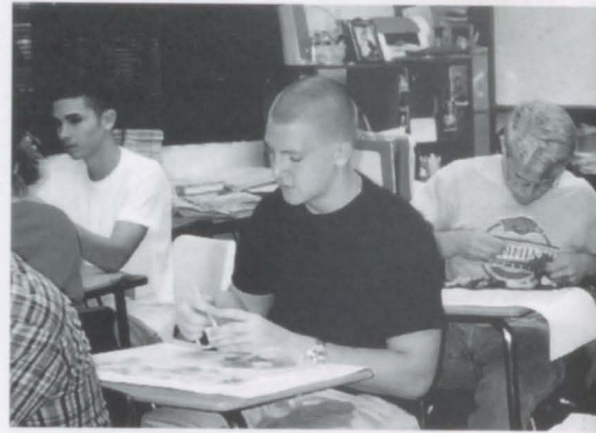

▲With total concentration, freshman Luis Martinez practices drawing squares in art class. He said, "My favorite part of art was drawing, coloring, and painting."

Watch Out, Picasso!

Perception and creative expression is part of the basics of art. And that is what Tidehaven art students were exposed to this school year. These basics along with learning of the historical and cultural heritage of art are part of what make up the art program. Students had to rely on their perceptions of the environment, developed through increasing visual awareness and sensitivity to surroundings, memory, imagination, and life experiences as a source for creating artworks. They expressed their thoughts and ideas creatively, while challenging their imagination, fostering reflective thinking, and developing disciplined effort and problem-solving skills.

Students in the art class were provided ample opportunities and projects to test their creativity with during the school year. After learning of prehistoric art in Western Europe, art in ancient Egypt, Greek art and Roman art along with the art of India, China and Japan and the native arts of the Americas, students were made more aware of the many styles of art in the world. Medieval and gothic art were also covered, as were Baroque and Rococo art. All of these types of art made the students familiar with the techniques that they would get to experiment with in class. After learning the basic techniques of drawing, such as sketching and shadowing, class members were given ample time to experiment with many types of paints, including acrylics and oils. Many surfaces were used to paint on, such as paper, canvas and wood. Most of the students in this year's art class will agree that they were able to be very creative during their classtime.

▲Vanna White style, Monica Esquivel, Lindsay Bexley, and Ashley Hurta display the classes' graffiti word art. "My favorite part in art was learning different techniques and painting," Monica commented.

►Under Mrs. Atkinson's watchful eye, freshman Angelica Marin cuts a tree out of colored paper. "My favorite part of art was when we made coffee cup holders," Angelica said.

▼ While talking in class, freshman Ashley Hurta works with Joseph Mielsch on their drawings. "I was drawing my name with flowers around it," Ashely commented. "I liked drawing and getting to make cool stuff."

"The thing I most enjoyed about art was learning all the different techniques for making different projects." Monica Esquivel

"Art was fun and easier than all my other classes. I liked working with pastels the most." David Galvan

"I like that we get to color alot. I can stay in the lines sometimes." Joseph Mielsch

▼Observing carefully, sophomore John Hahn watches Mr. Cornelius skin a wild hog in Food Tech. "I learned how to skin a hog and then we ate it, after frying," he commented.

►On display, junior Freddie Rojas shows off his radishes he grew in Plant and Soil Science. Freddie said, "I learned with a little time and patience you could have wonderful looking radishes."

The Agriculture department offers a variety of classes, varying from Equine with Mr. Cornelius to Plant and Soil Science with Mr. Meinardus. Equine is a class designed to help students develop knowledge and skills pertaining to the selection, nutrition, reproduction, health and management of horses. In Plant and Soil Science, students study about the plant and soil science as it related to soil and plant relationships that affect the production of food and fiber. Thanks to the students in this class, the front of the high school is decorated with flowers planted and maintained by the class. Along with the flowers, the students also have a vegetable garden at the Agriculture building that is under their care.

Another popular class in the Agriculture department is Food Tech. Students learn about the world food production, including processing, preparing and packaging of foods and government regulations regarding foods. The students may also prepare foods ranging from barbecue to making beef jerky, which they then get to enjoy after all of their hard work. Wildlife and Recreation Management is also a popular course in the Ag department. In this course, students examine the importance of wildlife and outdoor recreation with special emphasis on hunting and fishing safety, management, and federal and state laws. Students are also made aware of the opportunities for careers in wildlife science.

▼Using some teamwork, freshmen Dustin Fehmel, Bobby Shepard, Cameron Joines, and Josh Krenek cover tables for the Green-hand Camp. "I liked learning about all the different animals in Ag 102," Cameron said.

Sew, What's Cooking?

Yes, we still cook and sew in the Family and Consumer Science department. But that is not the only thing that goes on in this department. Of course, these are the two most popular things to do in the Personal and Family Development classes. During the first semester of school, students in this class were able to prepare many nutritious foods that included fruits, vegetables, meats, breads, milk and cheese. At the end of the second semester, sewing projects occupied most of the classtime. Projects ranged from hooded sweatshirts, dresses and shorts to pink flamingos, lime green furry feet, and brown, poseable bears. There were also many pillows, duffle bags and stadium blankets constructed in the classes.

Another popular class is Nutrition and Food Science during the first semester and Food Science and Technology during the second semester. In the Nutrition course, students learn how nutrition is related to good health and wellness and the ability to make well-informed choices for meals. Students received much practice in preparing dishes in food labs. After all of the preparation, they were able to enjoy eating their finished products! In the Technology course, students further developed their knowledge and skills from the Nutrition course. For their selections of foods to prepare, the students had to choose their own recipes to prepare. By doing this, students were careful to choose recipes with ingredients familiar to them.

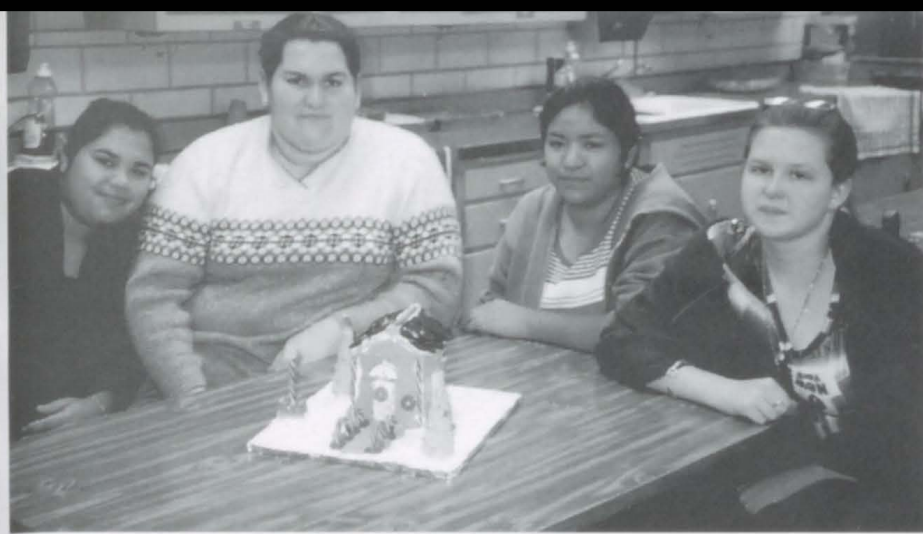

Child Development and Preparation for Parenting are two more class choices for students. In Child Development, students learn about the child's physical, intellectual, emotional and social growth from birth to six years of age. The Preparation for Parenting class makes students aware of prenatal care and development, the process of delivery and the stages of growth of babies, infants and young children.

Ten students in the Tidehaven High School Life Skills class learn the basics of everyday life in a classroom setting. Those skills are then taken out into the community and used to help these students with independent living skills they will use later in life. Students have daily activities. Some of these include health and hygiene, housekeeping chores, cooking, math skills, exercising, reading newspapers, using computers, practicing writing, and using cooperative participation at recreation and leisure time. The students also get daily experience with washing, drying and folding towels, dishclothes, and aprons for both the High School and Junior High cafeterias. The revenue that the students earn from doing this laundry is used to help fund field trips. Class members have taken several field trips this year. Some places they have toured are the Bay City Fire Station, Edith Armstrong Center, the Lake Jackson Mall, and the Aquarium and IMAX in Galveston, and the Palacios Marine Center. To earn extra spending money and to allow the students hands-on accounting skills, the class members sell chips, pickles, sodas, candy and homemade cookies to students at Tidehaven High School. With that money, the students have shopped for Christmas presents at Target, for cooking, baking, selling and various party supplies at Sam's and HEB, bought supplies for Christmas, Mother's Day and Father's Day crafts at Hobby Lobby, and bought flowers at Walmart. They planted those flowers in a garden by the classroom. The money has also been used to practice ordering and eating out skills at A&A Barbecue, Church's, Mr. Gatti's, Diamond S, Luby's, Wendy's, Whataburger, K2 Steakhouse and Cattleman's. Several of the students have on-campus and off-campus jobs. One student, Joe Johnson, works at HEB in Bay City for half the day. Another student, Joe Delgado, works in the Bus Barn for an hour or two each day. One student, Stacy Vaculin, works in the school office and, when needed, at the Administration Office.

The Computer "Gurus"

A new course was presented to students at Tidehaven this year - A+ Certification. This computer course is an industry-standard certification course that is essential for anyone desiring to work in the area of computer repair or technical support. Because this is a very technical course, the class was limited to four to six students with preference given to those who have has Algebra 2, geometry, and chemistry. Topics covered in the class included basic PC architecture, peripheral devices, Windows 9x and Windows 2000 operating systems, upgrades and basic troubleshooting and repair. Students had to opportunity to become A+ certified after passing the certification test and also had the opportunity to work with the district for pay during their spare time. The first part of the course consisted of learning the basic terms, concepts and functions relating to the main microcomputer modules. Students learned how to reflow established procedures for assembly and disassembly of systems and replaceable modules. Following this, students were given instruction on installing, configuring and upgrading the main modules. Instructions were also given on printer types and basic printer concepts, as well as printer components, functions and service techniques. In the next step of the course, students were given instructions on the functions and structure of Windows 9x and Windows 2000. Additionally, they learned how to navigate through an operating system using both command line prompts and the Windows GUI. The course also covered procedures for installing, configuring and upgrading Windows 9x and Windows 2000.

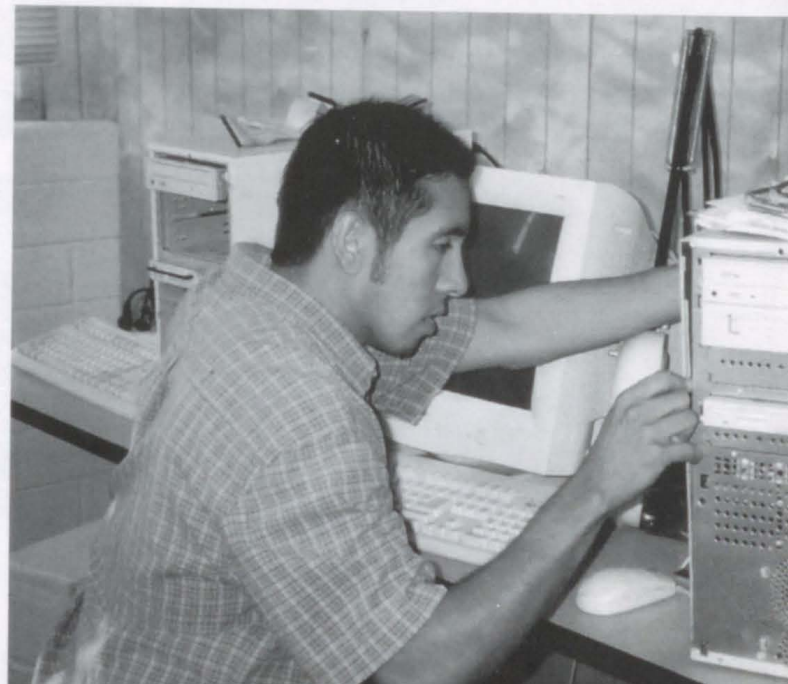

"I learned how to fix a lot of different computers and I'll always remember all the good times we had." Shauna Cornelius ▶ Looking lost, junior Preston Parks works on the motherboard of a computer. "The most frustrating thing about A Plus was going to take the certification test," Preston commented.

"Five years from now, I will remember to turn off and restart the computer three times. If it doesn't work after that, you're in trouble." Preston Parks

▶ Looking dazed and confused, senior Elizandro works on a CPU. "My specialty working with computers was asking lots of questions," Elizandro said.

Spiked Punch

"I can't" is not an option

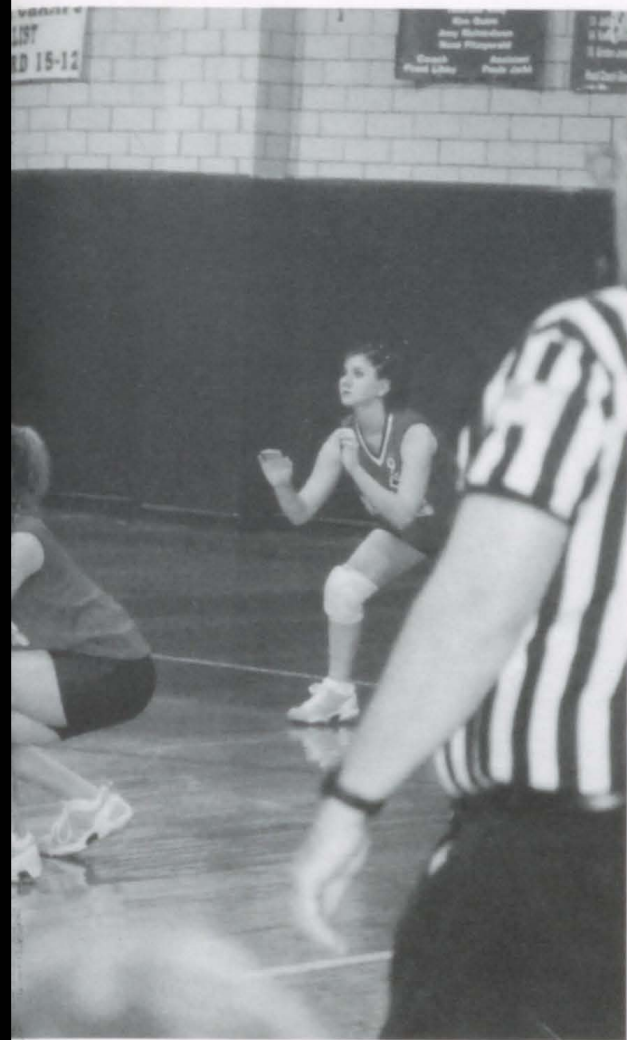

Like a rollercoaster ride, volleyball teams have their ups and downs in the season. That is what this year's varsity team had to deal with during their season. At times, the Tigerettes were at the top of their ride and then, the ride would bottom out. Luckily, for the girls, the rollercoaster season ended on a high point. The varsity Tigerettes ended the season with a record of four and four. With this record, the girls were able to participate in the first round of the playoffs. Traveling to Port Lavaca, the team took on Refugio but they were not able to overcome this team to advance any further in the playoffs.

For Coach Apodaca, the most memorable event of the season was being able to beat Van Vleck two times, with one of those times being in their home gym, and then, making it to the first round of the playoffs. With the end of the season, Senior Stephanie Dannels will miss the fun of going to the games and having her family and friends there to cheer for her and the team. However, for several of the freshman team members, a new year is just around the corner. Freshman Stacey Hickl looks forward to the next volleyball season, with the hopes that the team will improve and have a better winning season.

Tough Lessons

"Take the Stairs"

◀ Caught in a headlock, senior fullback, Roman Lara (8), tries to gain yardage on a running play. Roman stated, "I liked football because I got to run with the ball on the offense and on the defense, I got to tackle the ball carrier."

▼ Waiting for the coin toss, the Tidehaven representatives meet the Woodsboro players. Senior Matt Tovar (30) said, "I love the game of football. I was chosen as team captain by the others. It was a great honor for my last year."

The easy way to the top is to take the elevator, but you have to wait in line. There's never a line at the stairs because it's harder to get to the top. This was just one of the many lessons the varsity football team learned in this year's season. They started the year with a rough start by having only ten seniors and five sophomores starting on the varsity team. Even with what some people could consider a disadvantage, the members of the team played hard and gave their best for every game. For most of the games lost, the score was within seven points of a win.

For Coach Maple, the most memorable event of the season was winning three games in a row, beating Baytown Christian, Woodsboro and Yorktown. The team also had a chance to win against Schulenburg, Weimar, and Ganado, losing by four points, four points and one touchdown respectively. As words of advice given by Coach Maple, the boys all learned that nothing comes easy and you have to work hard to get success. Even with the departure of the seniors on this year's team, the younger players have acquired important knowledge of the game that will surely help them in the next year.

Do The Best You Can...

...and don't stop running.

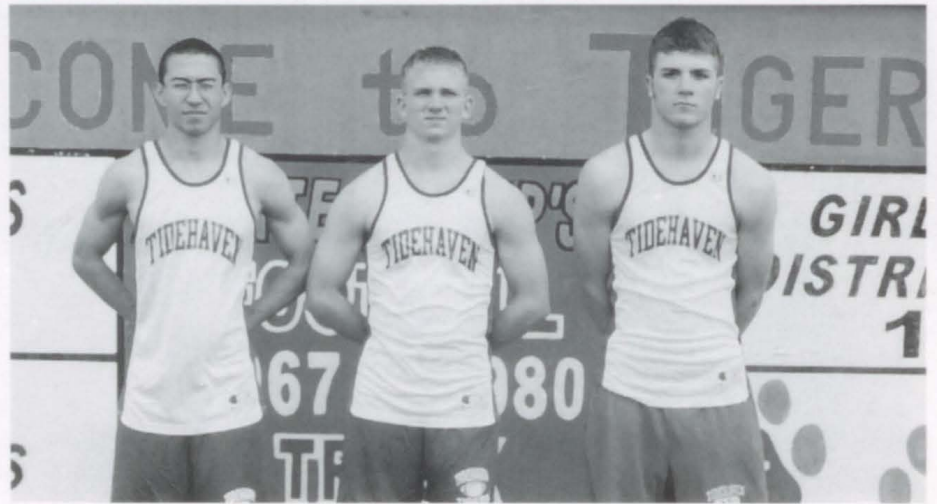

Cross Country is a very competitive sport that not many individuals care to compete in. This may have something to do with the long distance that has to be covered - two miles. For this year's cross country team, it was a very short season - a very, very short season. The runners had only two meets to participate in. One meet was held in Bay City at LeTulle Park and the other meet was for District. However, that did not stop the runners. According to the cross country coach, Coach Jenkins, team members did well for the amount of time they were able to put into training. All of these athletes were involved in other sports as well as cross country. So, instead of having a certain period or time after school to practice for cross country, the athletes were all training for the other sports. Then, if they were not already exhausted from football or volleyball practice, they could stay even later after school and practice for cross country.

The runners may not have placed in the meets they attended, but they all did finish the race. For Coach Jenkins, the most memorable event was the district meet at Brackenridge Park at Lake Texana. As Coach Jenkins told the yearbook staff, "It was pouring rain and the course was covered in water. Both the boys and girls were covered in mud and soaking wet after the race." Surely, for those participants on that day, this will be a long distance race they will not forget for a long time.

► Making a splash, Clayton Krenek competes in the District Cross County meet held at Lake Texana near Edna. Clayton stated, "My best memory is running in Edna while it was pouring down rain. We were running through ankle-deep water and mud the whole race."

▼ Gathered together before a race, teammates Garrett Krueger, Chris Miller, Clayton Krenek, Philip Martinez and Stacey Parr wait for their respective races. When asked why he competed in cross country, Garrett replied, "It helps me get in shape for other sports."

▲Discussing the race course, Coach Jenkins and Bobbie Besler listen to Lacey Shindler explain one of the particular turns. What did Bobbie think about when running? "I kept thinking 'why am I doing this?' and then about food!" Bobbie stated.

◀Catching her breath, Lacey Shindler waits with Coach Jenkins for Bobbie to finish the race. What dis Lacey think about when running? "I tried to think of things I enjoyed to do such as basketball or sing music lyrics to make the time appear shorter," she replied.

Fighting To The End

No excuses, just results

◀ Looking deep in thought, the team prepares to play Industrial. Senior guard, Teri Schneider (4), remembers her best memory of basketball being the time they went into over-time in two games and won both of them. "I will miss playing basketball with the other girls and competing against other teams," she said.

▼ Chasing down the ball, senior post and wing player Alicia Carpenter (22) races down the court. Alicia says she will miss the sport in general since it was her favorite. "When we played Ganado, me and this girl got into it and I slammed her head in the floor. I got a technical," she remembered.

"Never sit still and be satisfied, because if you do, someone else is working hard to pass you up." That was just some of the advice the members of the girl's basketball team heard during the season. The girl's teams started off their season with a few rough spots. However, to Coach Apodaca, the season was far too short. "I believe that the girls were grasping a hold of the defense there at the end. Even though we did not come out on top, the girls never stopped fighting," he said. The girls did have several highlights to their season though. One of the Tigerette's most memorable games was their second encounter with the Palacios team on the Palacios home court. Tidehaven came out on top with a score of 50-48 in overtime, after losing to them at the Tidehaven court by two points in the first game of the season.

For a senior member of the team, Karissa Clontz, the enjoyment of playing the game with her friends will be something she will miss about basketball. Karissa also stated, "I liked competing against different teams. Even though we didn't have a winning season, I had alot of fun playing basketball with my friends." Several team members will be returning for the next season. One of those members, freshman Dezirae Maple, hopes to improve on her dribbling for the next year. Hopefully, this improvement will help her from getting another black eye!

Roller Coaster Ride

You Get Out What You Put In

"Success doesn't come without a struggle." The season for the Tiger Basketball team started out a little rocky. The team was losing games by huge margins before the members of the team actually started trusting in the system that Coach Cormier was trying to teach them. Once teammates started to trust the system and were understanding their plays, the Tigers started to find success. However, just when things started coming together, the team lost ground because of grades, and this put the coach back to square one. Also, the cold and flu season had a turn at setting the team back. That is when Coach Cormier found himself with only five players. Some of the teammates were able to later regain eligibility, but things were never the same as before. Even with all of these obstacles, the team did manage to improve from the beginning of the season. What a rollercoaster season!

All of the players had memories that they will take with them from this basketball season. For Dwight Bell, a senior, those memories consist of the fun times on the bus rides to and from the games. He also enjoyed practicing fun drills with Coach Cormier and when Coach Cormier joked around with the team, making them laugh. Freshman Allen Revis enjoyed working with the coaches, with his favorite memory being their first win against West Columbia Christian.

▶As he watches the Van Vleck defense, sophomore Frankie Gonzales (3) works the ball closer to the basket. Frankie, the team's shooting guard, stated, "My best memory of the season was making six three-point baskets against Ganado and also against Van Vleck."

▲Looking for an open shot, junior Zach Randle (44) concentrates on the shot. "I liked playing small forward because it keeps you in shape for football and for next year's basketball season," Randle stated.

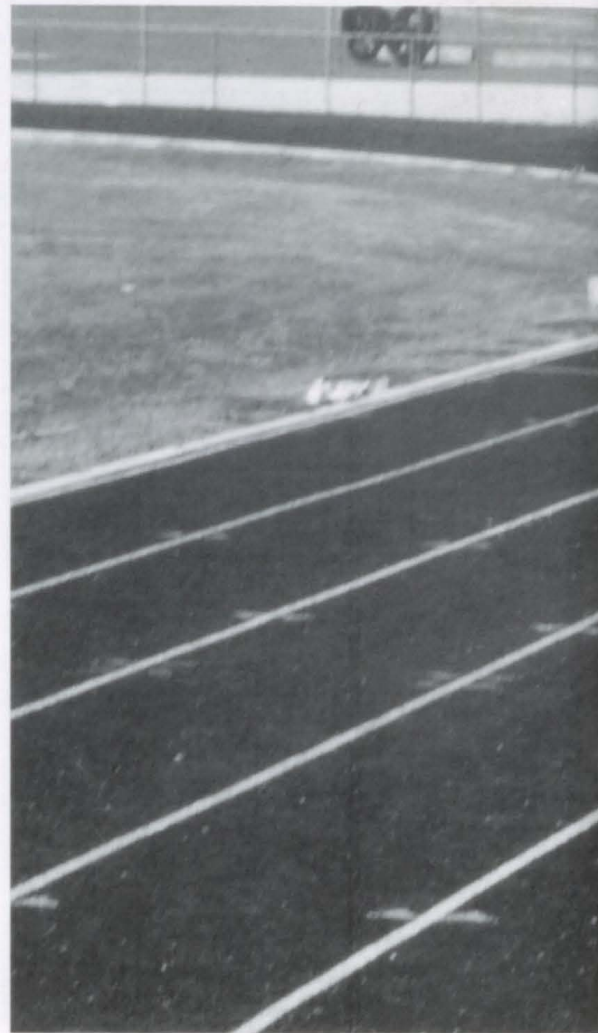

◀With a Van Vleck player close by, senior Chris Hammonds (22) looks for a teammate to pass the ball to. Chris enjoyed playing point guard, because, as he put it, "you get to shoot almost every time you get the ball."

Don't give in to the aches

▼Before their events, Erica Caballero, Kim Carillo, Leanne Wiley and Chelsea Capak warm up. Junior Kim Carillo said, "I enjoyed track because I was able to compete against other girls and also get to know them."

'Don't give in to the aches'... in other words, don't let your body make you think you are tired. Those were some of the words of advice that the track coach, Coach Apodaca, gave to the girls on the track team. For the Tidehaven Tigerette track team, this season was a season of character building. With a lot of practice, the girls on the team learned that they could push their bodies a lot harder than they thought. This was a very young track team. There was only one person on varsity and the remainder of the track team was on junior varsity, with many of the members being freshman. One of the memorable events of the season was when the only varsity member, Lacey Shindler, advanced to the regional track meet in San Marcos. Lacey advanced in both the discus and shot put events.

With such a young team, the Tigerettes should be more competitive in the years to come. Several freshman members of the team were interviewed about their involvement in track. Anita Sierra, who competed in the 100 meter dash, 400 meter relay and 800 meter relay, enjoyed her events because, as she stated, "I was able to run the short distance races and not the really long races." For next year, she hopes to improve in her speed, which is what Ashley Adkins also hopes to improve on. Both Ashley and Dezirae Maple competed in the mile relay, 800 meter relay and the sprint relay. Building their stamina and endurance for the races is what Ashley and Dezirae want to improve on for the next season. Another freshman, Samantha Vu, participated in the 800 meter run and the 200 meter run. Samantha likes the competition because it helps her to lose weight and for the next season, Samantha hopes to improve her running strength so she doesn't pass out during the races! Good luck to the Tigerettes on their next track season.

Fast and Furious

Stay Focused

Stay focused on what you are trying to accomplish. Those were some of the words of advice given to the Tiger track team during the season. The track team worked very hard for the season and competed well at every meet that they attended. From the varsity team, one member advanced to regionals. That member was senior Roman Lara. Roman competed in the shot put at the regional track meet in San Marcos.

Members of the Tiger track team were asked about their involvement in track. One of those, freshman Cameron Joines, participated in several events which included the 200 meter dash, 400 meter dash, 1600 meter relay, and the triple jump. Cameron plans to participate again next year and he hopes to improve his triple jump by trying to get to 39.2 feet rather than the 37.2 feet he accomplished this year. He also hopes to improve his time in the other events that he participates in. Another freshman, Allen Revis, participated in the 400 meter relay, 800 meter relay, 100 meter dash, 1600 meter relay, the long jump and the triple jump. As if Allen does not participate in enough events, Allen would also like to participate in the 200 meter dash in the next season. Along with improving his times, Allen would also like to improve the length of his long jumps and triple jumps. Mikey Olguin, also a freshman, participated in the 200 meter dash, 400 meter relay and 800 meter relay. He would also like to improve his speed for the next track season. Good luck to these young participants and the others who will be competing for Tidehaven next season.

► Straining with effort, junior Jake Johnson prepares to throw the shot put. Jake said he most enjoyed meeting other people at the track meets. "Next year, I want to improve what I throw in discus," he commented.

▼ Passing the batons, the boys' relay team practices their hand-offs. When asked what he would improve on for next year, sophomore Wes Piwonka said "I would convince the coaches to have track meets on school days and not Saturdays."

Chris competed in track for all four years of high school.

This year's Tiger baseball team knew coming into the season that the district would be stronger than the previous year. On paper, Coach Wuthrich realized that playing good baseball could still result in a fourth place finish because of the district being that tough. So, for the team, one of their goals for this year was to see how well they could play seven innings of baseball. The team always put their best effort into reaching that goal and the goal was partially reached by the Tigers playing two district games that resulted in extra innings, with one game going into eight innings, and another game lasting nine innings. The team competed great, but came up short in both games. During the season, the team's consistency proved to be the biggest obstacle to over-come. With only two seniors on the roster, the younger members were expected to contribute a greater part to the team. With the progression made in the season, Coach Wuthrich felt like the young Tiger team made some good gains throughout the year.

For Coach Wuthrich, there were several memorable events of the season. Each player created his own memories during the season and coaching just allows Coach Wuthrich to be a small part of those memories. As the coach stated, "I could name a different event for each player. One special memory is when my manager asked if I ever get attached to my players. I told her, 'yes ma'am... everyone of them'. She told me she could tell."

For words of advice, Coach Wuthrich often tells his team members to practice hard because opportunities await those that are prepared and can recognize the opportunities. If you are not prepared, you may never realize that an opportunity just passed by you.

Every Team Is Beatable

Ain't no mountain high enough

The Tigerette softball team had new experiences this season with a new coach and a new motto... 'Ain't no mountain high enough.' Coach Sturm taught the girls to keep their chin down and see the grounder through your cradle first and foremost before you make the throw. Otherwise, a player will attract every bruise and bump from not seeing the ball. If you don't, the ball will get you first before you can get control of the ball - you have to attack the ball, control it and deliver it with authority. Softball, in Coach Sturm's words, is just like life... how you play the game is how you will be in society.

For the Tigerette softball team, their season was based on success. This success may not have counted in the number of wins but, instead, was counted in the progress the team made both as a team and as individual members. The girls' primary purpose was on the fundamentals and taking care of the little things. The Tigerettes were reminded to never give up during times of adversity and always have the ability to work together as a team. With only three seniors on the team, there will be eight returning varsity members and with the main fundamentals they have learned in this season, the upcoming Tigerette softball team should be ready to truly show their strengths in the next season.

► Straining under the weight, junior Preston Parks struggles to do his squat. Preston's best memory was advancing to state in powerlifting. He said, "It felt great to advance. I had a real feeling of accomplishment."

Workin' Hard...

...it's not for everyone.

◀With a spotter behind him, sophomore Alex Tapia does his squat at the district meet. Alex joined powerlifting to keep in shape for baseball. "Before I lift, I listen to music, like Eminem, to pump me up," Alex said.

▼Taking a break, freshman Amanda Robles smiles for the camera. Amanda says her mom made her join powerlifting, but as she said, "It felt really good to advance and finally be good at something." Amanda placed third at the state competition.

The powerlifting season was exciting and long. Tidehaven started a girls team that did very well for the first year. There were seven girls on the team with one girl, freshman Amanda Robles, qualifying for regionals and state. Amanda competed in the regional meet at LaMarque and earned a trip to the state meet which was held in Killeen. At state, Amanda finished third in her weight category. With that kind of showing, the Tidehaven girls powerlifting team will definitely be in for some prime competition in the next school season.

Not to be outdone, the boys powerlifting team also did exceptionally well in their competitions. There were five male powerlifters to qualify for regionals. These team members included senior Roman Lara, juniors Preston Parks and Brian Dannels and sophomores Ramiro Mujica and John Palomares. The regional competition was held in Kirbyville. From regionals, Preston Parks was the only one to qualify for the state meet which was held at TCU in Fort Worth. Preston competed at state but failed to place in his weight category.

At two of the meets attended by the powerlifting team, the team placed second overall in Ganado and third place overall at East Bernard. Coach Jenkins advises the team to work hard and the payoff comes in all sports. The athletes become stronger and it helps in all sports that they are involved in.

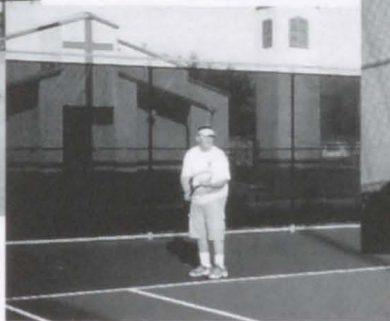

Getting Better Each Year

It takes practice...all year

Bigger and better... that is how the tennis coach, Coach Jasek, describes the tennis program at Tidehaven. This season had the largest number of athletes participating in as long as Coach Jasek has been at Tidehaven. The tennis players played dual matches with five schools, including Ganado, El Campo, Needville, Industrial and Boling. For Coach Jasek, the most memorable moments of the season were when several players won matches for the first time and then, watching their excitement after winning the game. Several players were interviewed about their involvement in tennis. Freshman Maleri Ortiz has been playing tennis for three years. She enjoys tennis because the exercise helps you stay in shape and actually, just playing the game is fun for her. Also, Maleri enjoyed meeting new people at the tennis matches. Sophomore Jessica Tatum joined tennis because it is a very fun sport. She also liked the idea of getting out of school early to go to the out of town meets. Another sophomore, Regina Jalufka, isn't really sure why she joined tennis but now, she is glad that she did. She likes the competition against other teams and also getting out of school early. Regina plans to play again next year and hopes to improve on her serves and most importantly, winning! For junior Yessica Bernabe, this was her second year to play tennis. She originally joined tennis because she wanted to learn how to play and it looked like fun. For the next season, Yessica hopes to improve on her serves. Another junior, Javier Valdez, had his first experience of playing in tennis matches this year. Javier joined tennis because he wanted something fun to do and he really enjoys going places to compete against other people. With all of these interested players, Tidehaven should be well represented in the local tennis circuit next year.

► After a hair-raising match, seniors Jim Black and Patrick Young rest. Jim Black said, "I liked playing tennis with my friends most of all. I also liked being able to compete against other schools."

▲Chillin' in the van, sophomore Kim Black enjoys the ride to the tournament with her brother, Jim Black. "I loved having my brother on the team. He always made me laugh. I think it would've been boring without him," she stated.

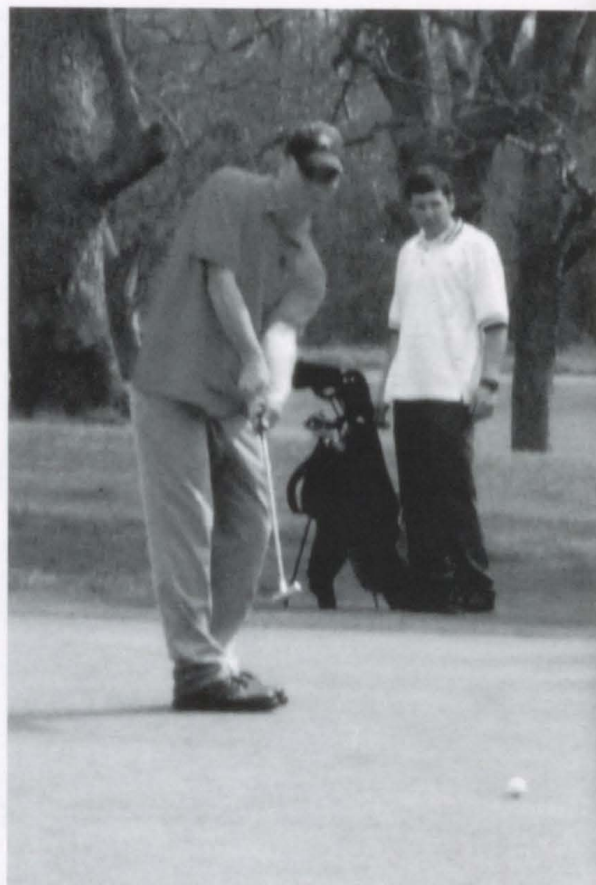

◀Practicing ball-bouncing, senior Patrick Young goof's off on the court. "The thing I enjoyed most about playing tennis was being able to explore the country side and play with my classmate, Jim Black," Patrick said. ▲During an afternoon practice, freshman Heather Gibson takes a break with the other girls. Heather said, "I joined because I wanted to try something new."

Keep It In the Fairway

Gettin' hooked on golf

◀ In a group conference, Kyle Griffith and Clayton Krenek discuss their scores with Coach Jasek. When asked why he liked to play golf, Kyle said, "It's fun and another sport to try out."

▼ Resting between holes, Nick Winfrey and Wes Piwonka chill in the golf cart. Nick claimed his favorite experience on the golf team this year was... "taking the golf cart in Sealy."

The Tiger golf team was very competitive in this year's season. Most of the golfers on the team lowered their scores each time that they played. This was very good for the team considering the effects the weather had on their competition at the meets. With the exception of the Brazos and District tournaments, the weather was either cold, wet or very windy. Coach Jasek noted that this was the worst playing conditions she has ever seen in her years of coaching golf at Tidehaven.

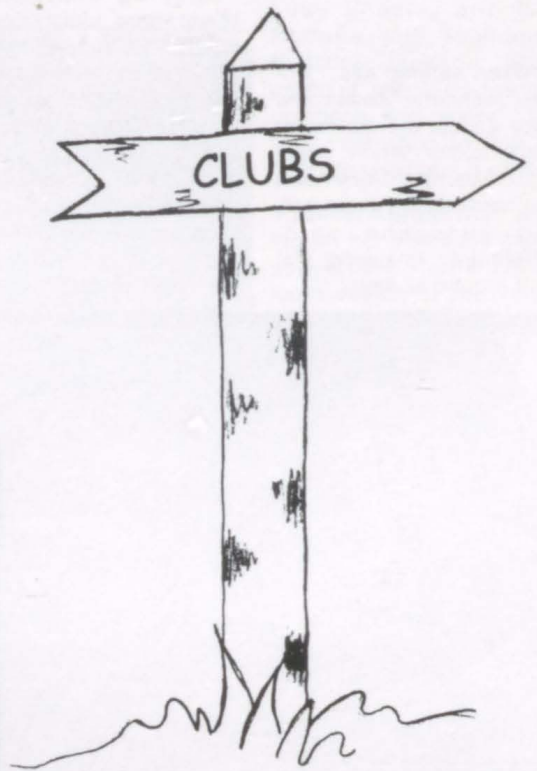

There were several highlights for the golf team this season. Junior Bobbie Besler qualified for the regional tournament by placing fourth in the district. This was Bobbie's second year to qualify for the regional meet. At the regional tournament, Bobbie ended the season with a 22nd position out of 85 players. Another highlight for Coach Jasek was when the boys team won third place at both the Ganado and Brazos tournaments.

For words of advice, Coach Jasek tells her players that golf is not a cheap sport. The equipment can be expensive but once you play the game, you are hooked. Also, golf is a lifetime sport and many business deals get made on the golf course. For senior Jared Cumutt, golf will continue to be a part of his life as he does plan on continuing to play golf after high school. Jared would like to improve the putting portion of his game. The best part of high school golf for Jared was that he was able to get out of school on Mondays to play in golf tournaments. Sophomore Jeffrey Wendel joined the golf team after watching golf tournaments on television and he thought it looked like a lot of fun. Jeffrey would like to improve on all aspects of his golf playing. Just remember to stay out of the rough!

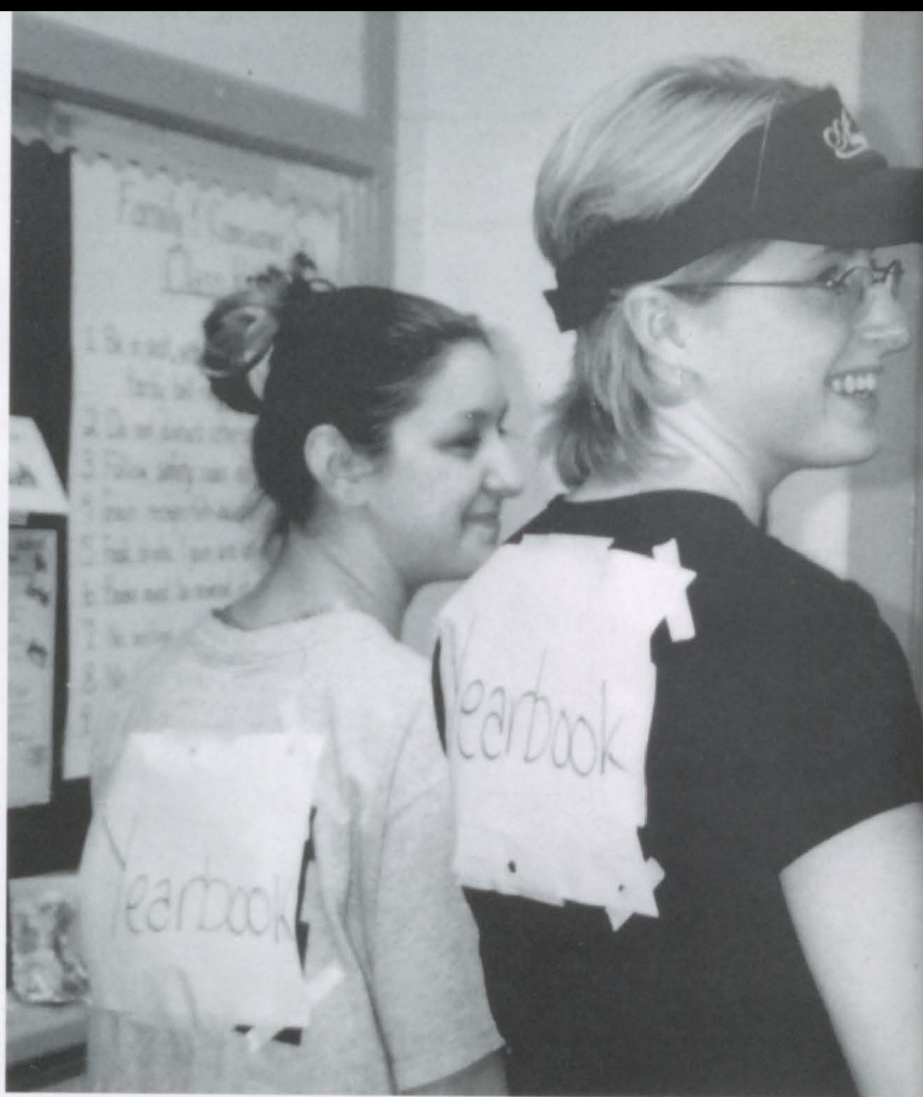

▼After selling ads, juniors Jeannette Zavala and Lucy Zavala are eating at McDonald's. When Jeannette was asked what was the hardest part about selling ads, she said, "Definitely following Ms. Huff around all day."

►Showing their home-made signs, junior Stephanie Bigelow and senior Kristan Streams are ready to take pictures at the pep rally. "We wanted everyone to know we were supposed to be on the gym floor and taking pictures, not just obstructing the views of the people sitting in the bleachers," explained Kristan.

With a lot of work, members of the yearbook staff put together a book that will serve as both a record and a memory of the 2002-2003 school year. Work on the yearbook started earlier than normal when two staff members, Kristan Streams and Kara Safia, along with Ms. Huff, attended a week of workshops at the Taylor Publishing Yearbook Summer Camp at Sam Houston State University in Huntsville. While at the workshops, Kristan and Kara came up with the idea for this year's book. From that idea came the plans for the cover and the theme. Also, while attending different sessions, the students and Ms. Huff were able to learn other ways to improve the book. One of these ways proved to be the most work of all of the ideas. That work can be found when you read the captions that go with the pictures in the book. This year, almost all captions include a quote from one of the people featured in the picture. Getting quotes took extra effort from the staff members who were responsible for those pages. The staff would like to thank all of those students who were helpful and willing to give quotes. Another improvement that the staff agreed upon was the inclusion of 'spot color' on the individual picture pages. This was to give more color to the book. Using the Ultravision program from Taylor Publishing, yearbook members worked many hours to put together a yearbook that includes everyone from Pre-Kindergarten to Seniors. The Tiger staff sincerely hopes that everyone will enjoy this publication for many years to come.

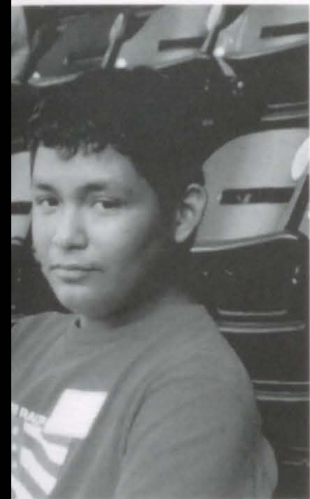

Trying To Capture 'The Good Stuff'

▼Taking a break from working on her yearbook pages, sophomore Carrie Phillips looks directly at the photographer as the picture is taken. Carrie commented, "It was fun to work on the pages and be creative and come up with unique ideas."

◀Interviewing a student was part of sophomore Fanci Purswell's job for the yearbook. One of the best parts of being on the yearbook for Fanci was 'knowing what next year's book is going to look like before everyone else.'

► Giving a speech for an NHS meeting is senior Sarah Reese. When asked what is the best part of being in NHS, she responded, "It feels good to know that my efforts have been rewarded."

▼ Enjoying their time at the District convention are Stephanie Dannels, Ashlee Huffman, Allyson Beane, Lacey Shindler and Cassie Sliva. When asked why she liked being in NHS, Ashlee commented, "because we are known as the 'smart' kids."

I liked being able to lead such an awesome group and I would like to see more people in NHS. It would give us the ability to be more active and to get the chance to have other opportunities- Lacey Shindler, senior.

▼Lighting a candle at the NHS meeting is senior Lacey Shindler. When asked why this ritual is symbolic for the organization, she said, "Each candle represents a value needed to be a member."

The Tidehaven chapter of the National Honor Society is more than just an honor roll. The Honor Society chapter establishes rules for membership that are based upon a student's outstanding performance in the areas of scholarship, service, leadership, and character. These criteria for selection form the foundation upon which the organization and its activities are built. On November 18, 2002, fourteen new members were inducted with an annual candlelight service. The candlelight service was held in the library where officers gave interpretations of the organization's cardinal principals, which the members are held responsible for.

This year's members of the National Honor Society were invited to the Gordon Campsite and Ranch in Richmond on April 23 for the annual NHS convention. Each school was assigned a safari animal in accordance with the convention theme of "Come on a Safari adventure with us." Tidehaven participants were assigned the tiger, in honor of our own mascot. Members took part in a variety of activities from volleyball to karaoke. They also heard ex-NFL player of the Chicago Bears, Barry Mentor, discuss responsibility, dedication, and commitment.

Along with having fun, members are responsible for five hours of community service. Members work hard year-round to accomplish their service hours. Mentoring, peer tutoring, donating blood, and helping out with church activities are among some of the things members do to earn their service hours.

Icing the Valentine's Day cookies is freshman Amanda Robles. When asked what she thought was the most fun about icing these cookies, she replied, "Getting to see who bought who a cookie."

For the second year in a row, the Tidehaven chapter of Family, Career and Community Leaders of America used part of their meeting times to help others in more desperate situations. By staying after school, members were able to sew and tack baby blankets. These blankets were donated to the Women's Crisis Center in Bay City, which helps all citizens of Matagorda County. The club was able to increase their donation to ten quilts from the previous year's donation of six.

For the annual Valentine cookie sales, members really outdid themselves by selling the largest amount of cookies ever in the seventeen years of this project. There were many hours spent selling, mixing, baking and delivering the 1470 cookies that were sold. This amount certainly topped the eight hundred cookies that were sold the previous school year. The money that was raised with this project is used to buy supplies for community service projects, attend regional and state meetings and for the end-of-school trip.

Several members were busy during the Matagorda County Fair with their entries in the Home Economics division. Members entering items this year were Amber Gilchrist, Abby Lankster, Yessica Bernabe, Alicia Griffith, Kara Saha and Sabrina Gilchrist. All of the members fared well on their entries. Kara Saha was a repeat winner by winning High Point Exhibitor for the second year in a row. Congratulations to all members who entered items in the fair this year. Keep up the good work!

Trying not to poke their fingers, Yessica Bernabe and Javier Valdez work on one of the baby quilts donated to the Women's Crisis Center. Javier stated, "I liked working on the quilts because I knew that another baby would not be cold after receiving this blanket."

◀Concentrating on the task at hand, Amber Gilchrist and Krystal King work together on a baby blanket. Krystal stated, "It's great to make the blankets because you feel that you are actually keeping a baby or little child warm with one of your blankets."

In February, Drum Major Brittany Jackson participated in Solo and Ensemble Contest and brought home a medal for her first division performance. Before the 'real' school year ever began, the varsity and junior varsity cheerleaders were already hard at work. Attending an NCA cheer camp at the University of Texas in Austin proved to be a challenge for all of the cheerleaders involved. This was a challenge the young ladies from Tidehaven readily accepted and were able to conquer. From learning new cheers, chants, and dances during the day to being winners of the Spirit Stick nightly and receiving Superior ratings on their cheers, the Tidehaven cheerleaders earned the respect of the other schools also attending the camp. Two special moments happened while at camp. Meagan Massey was selected for All-American Cheerleader tryouts and the Tiger mascot, Dottie (aka Kati Prather), was selected as an All-American Mascot.

With all of the excitement lingering from camp, the first day of school at Tidehaven greeted new and returning students with halls decorated with spirit signs and balloons, thanks to the cheerleaders. For the first pep rally of the year, the cheerleaders and mascot arrived on a fire truck complete with sirens going, during a mock fire drill, to start off the first of many pep rallies.

For this school year, the cheerleaders and mascot worked hard to keep everyone 'pumped up.' With all of that extra effort, this year was a GREAT year for the cheerleaders!

▼Posing for the camera, the one-act play crew goofs off at Industrial High School where they performed for district contest. "I enjoyed the final outcome of the lights and sound together. It ended up working out great," said junior Reba Glaze.

As Kati Prather mentioned, "Acting in the one-act play is like playing make-believe, only you are in high school competition, instead of on the playground." Essentially, that is what the drama club is all about. This year, the drama club presented The Midnight Caller by Horton Foote, who is a Wharton native. Before competing in the district UIL competition in Industrial, the members presented the play to their friends and families on Tidehaven's high school stage. Even though the play did not advance in district competition, several members of the cast and crew gained recognition at the district level. Seniors Lacey Shindler and Sarah Reese were named to the All-Star Cast while junior Kati Prather received Honorable Mention on the All-Star Cast. Another first for this year was when crew member, sophomore Jeffrey Wendel, was named to the All-Star Tech Crew. Leading up to the competition, the cast and crew had 6:30 a.m. practices, went resale shopping for their costumes and held a lock-in for one of their practices.

The drama club had many unique experiences for the past year. One of these experiences was the Fun House of Death at the annual Halloween spook house held in Blessing. Other experiences included playing Ships & Sailors and Big Booty and utilizing fast forward in some of their play practices. At some of the meetings, members participated in improvisational skits and also tried their hand at karaoke.

Along with the competition that comes between classmates for good grades, there is another type of competition in which students can compete against students from other schools. This competition is known as the UIL Academic meet. The University Interscholastic League believes that most students enjoy the pursuit of excellence and seek opportunities to test themselves against their own accomplishments and those of their peers. The opportunities are best provided through properly conducted and equitable administered competitive activities. The invaluable lessons that young people learn in UIL competition prepare them for live of achievement.

To this end, Tidehaven participates in academic competition ranging from spelling to poetry to math and science. This year, the academic squad traveled to Wharton to compete in district competition. At the end of the day of competition, Tidehaven had four medalists and one regional qualifier. The regional qualifier was senior Kristan Streams who placed first in Informative Speaking. By placing first in her competition, Kristan earned a trip to the regional competition in San Marcos. The competition was even tougher and Kristan did well but was not able to advance to the state level. Congratulations to all who did compete for the gold in this year's UIL academic competition.

COLOPHON

The Tiger was printed on 80# enamel paper with a press run of 150 copies, consisting of 160 pages with one four page color tip-in and sixteen pages of spot color. The book sold for $27, $30 and $33 progressively, with an additional $3 for cover name. At distribution time in August, the books were available for $36 on a first come basis.

Body copy for the book was Embassy, with Nouveau Gothic Italic used for captions. Traditional headlines were printed using Embassy Bold, with subheads printed in Nouveau Gothic Italic. Panel names were printed using Memento. The book, trimmed to 7 3/4" x 10 1/2", had a cover designed by the students attending the summer workshop at Sam Houston State University.

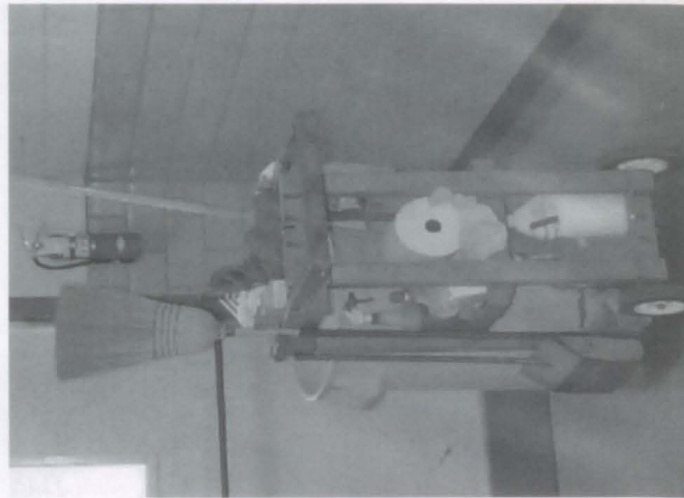

The yearbooks were printed by Taylor Publishing Company of Dallas, at the El Paso plant location. The staff was assisted by customer service representative, Ryan Almon. Special thanks to Ryan for all of his wonderful ideas and help with the page layouts.

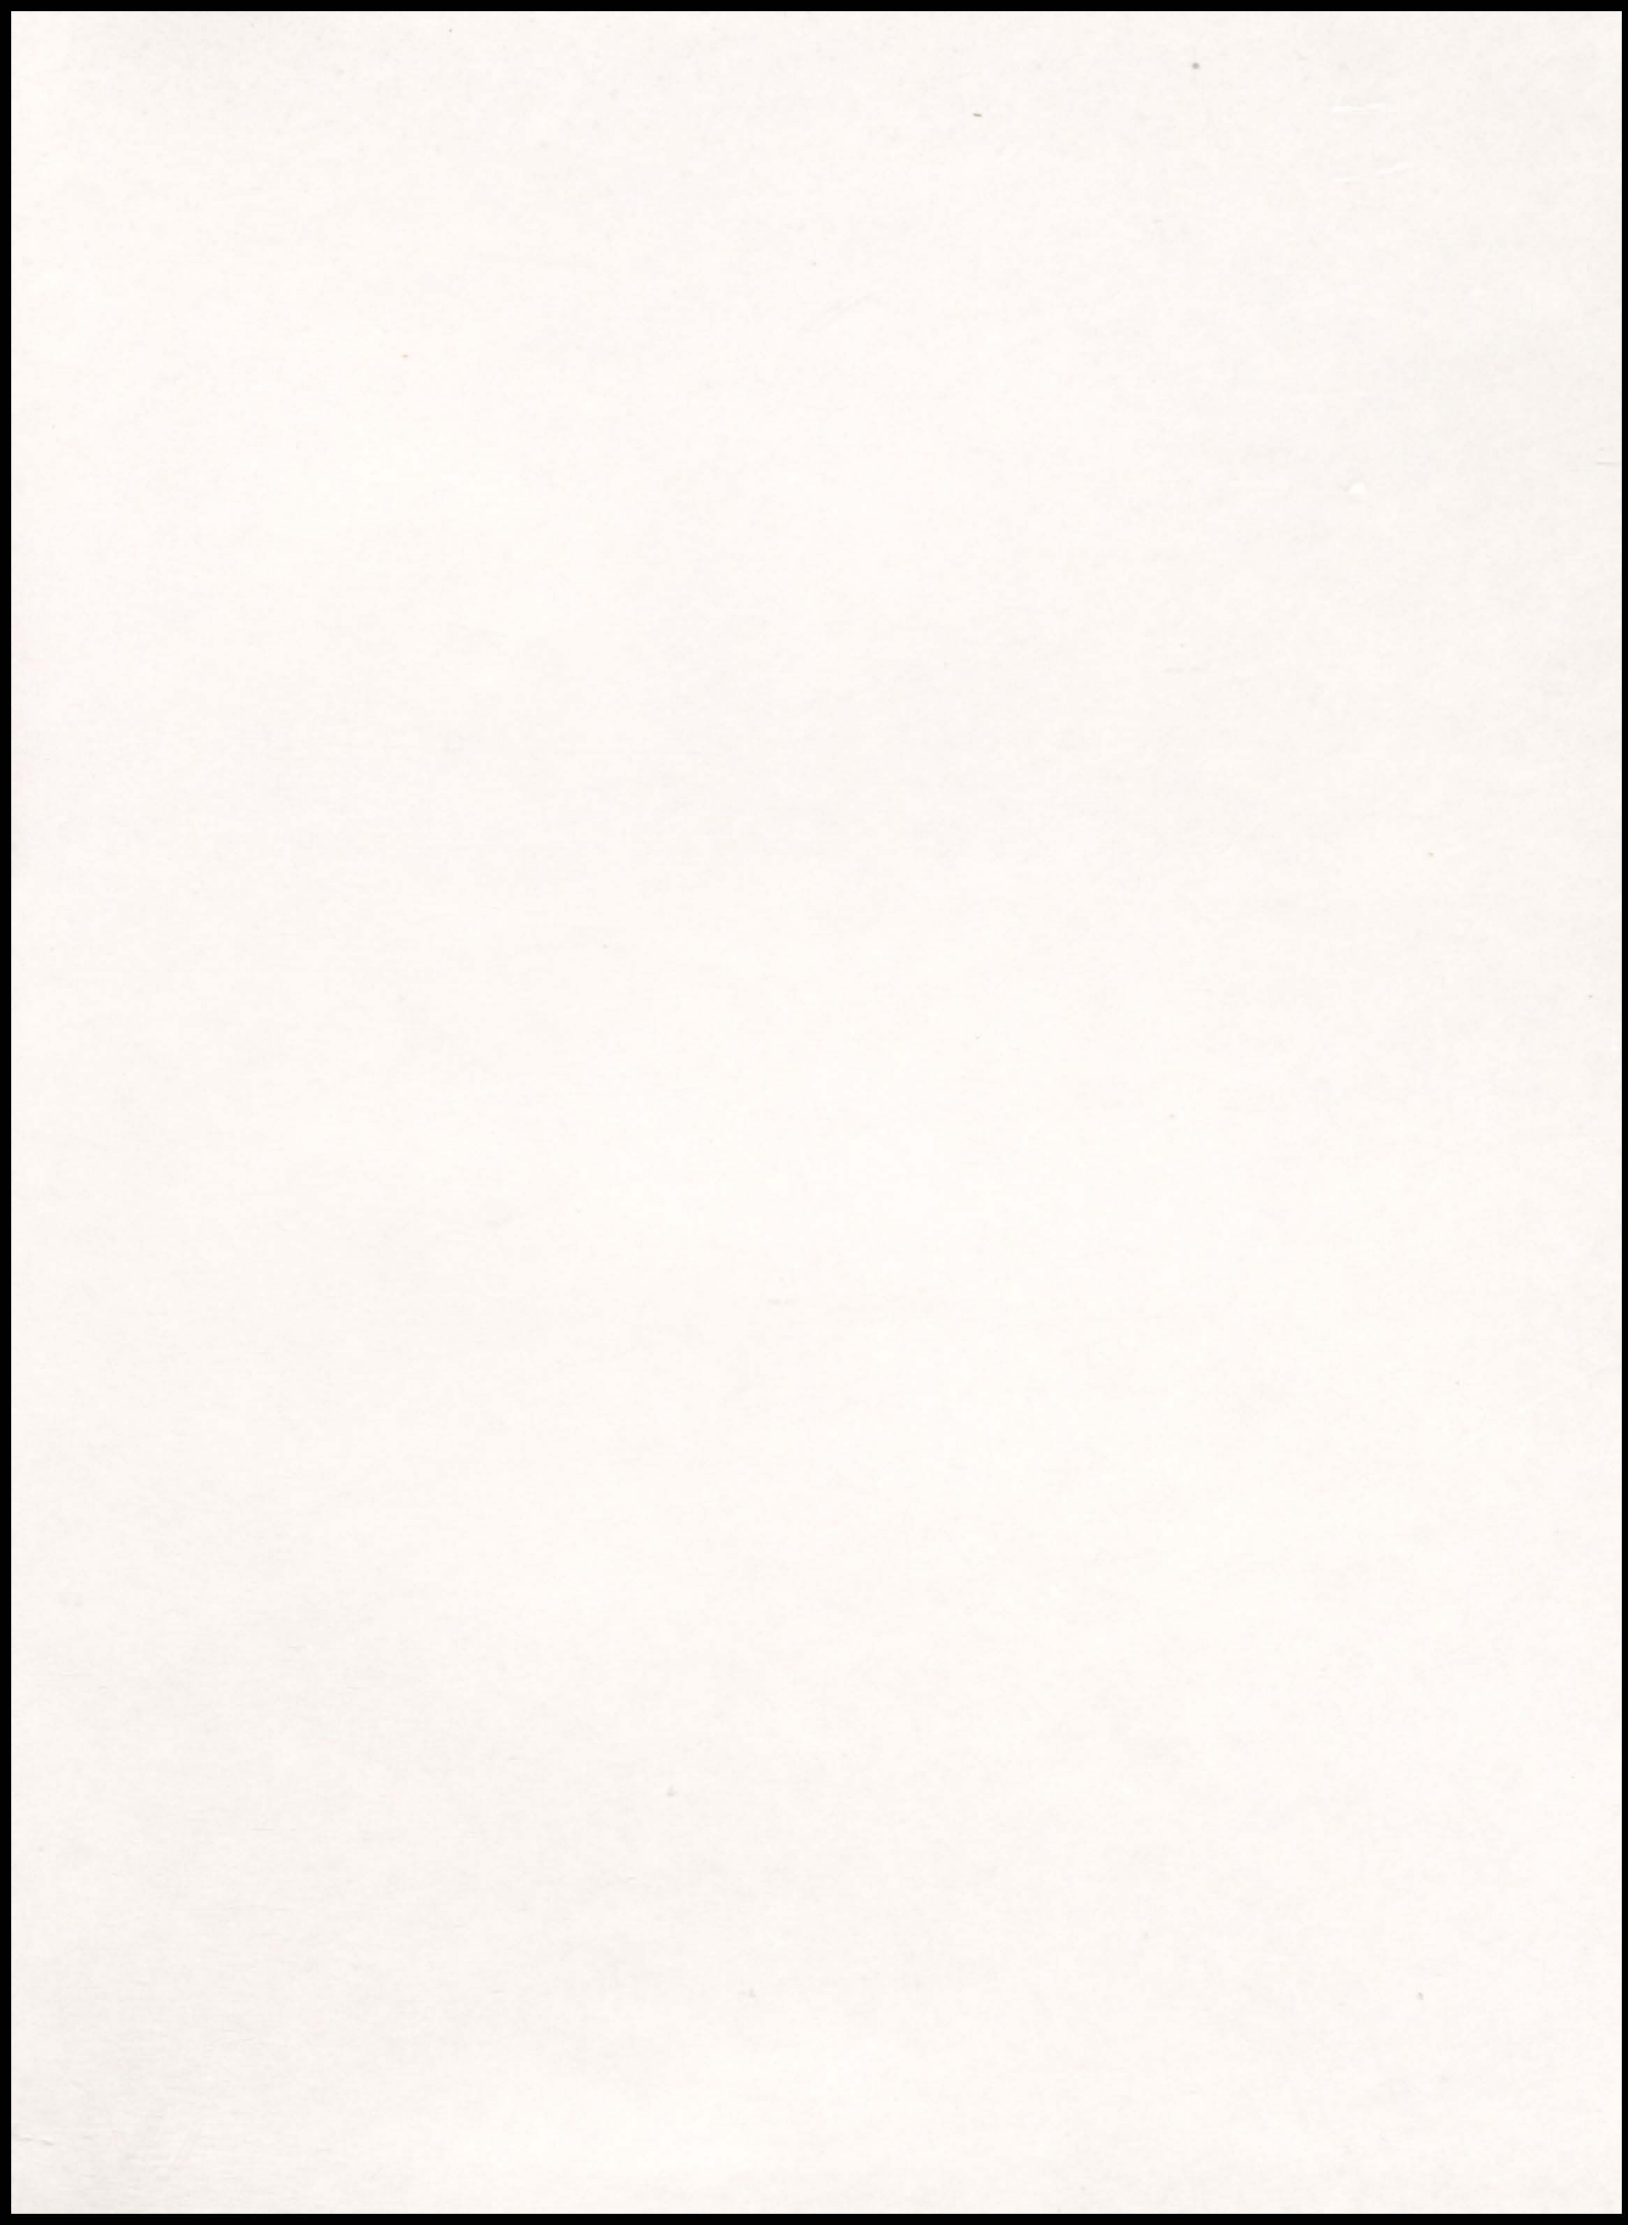

Portraits and group pictures were taken by Life Touch Studios of Stafford. All individual portraits from all four schools were photographed by Life Touch. Candid photos were taken primarily by staff photographers with some photos provided as a courtesy by others. The yearbook was produced using the Ultravision yearbook computer design program on three PCs.

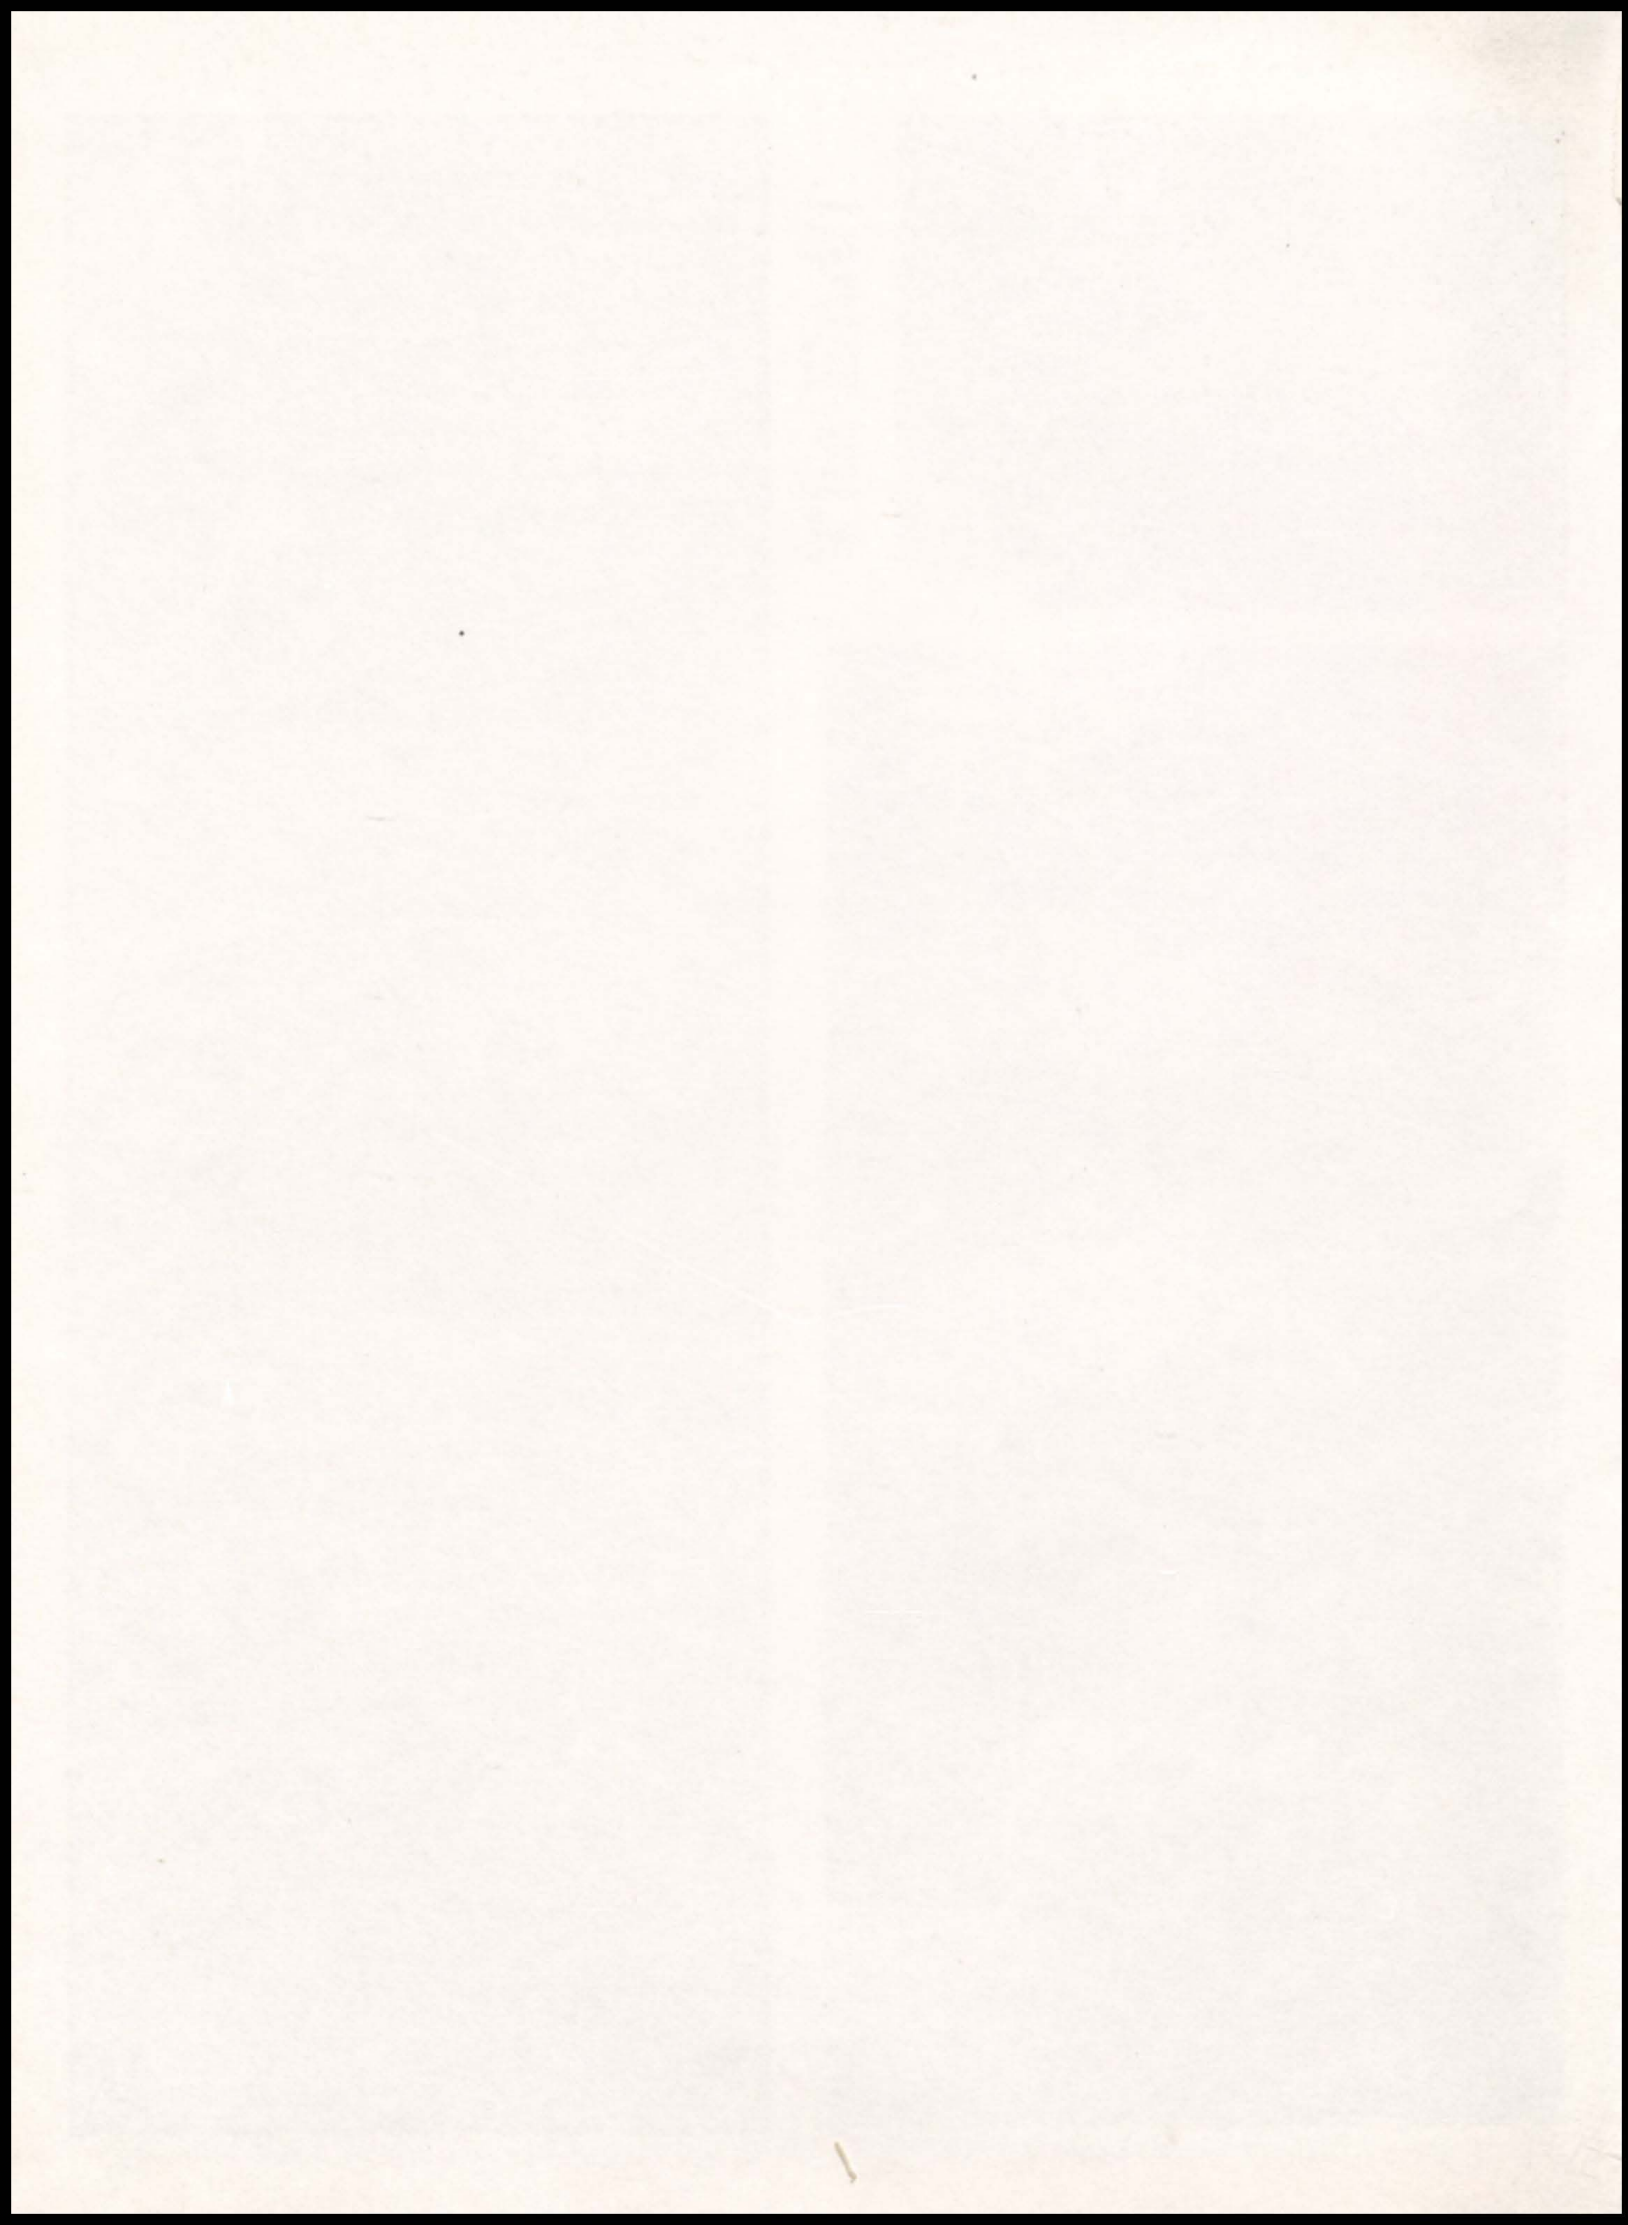

The Tiger is produced using only monies raised by staff members. Fundraisers include selling ads for the yearbook and providing supplies for football concession stands, in addition to yearbook sales.

The yearbook is advised by Renee Huff.
